Dear Members of the Recruiting Committee,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the advertised position of Assistant Professor in Economics at [Institute Name]. As a Ph.D. candidate at Goethe University Frankfurt, I specialize in labor economics, with a particular focus on firm dynamics. In my research, I build micro-founded quantitative heterogeneous firm models to address policy-oriented questions. I am particularly excited about this opportunity at [Institute Name] due to the department's strengths in labor economics and its collaborative research environment.

In my current research, I explore how firms' decisions to go public impact their investment behavior and labor market outcomes over the business cycle. In a collaborative work, I also investigate how firms' subjective expectations influence their R&D investments and how these decisions contribute to aggregate productivity growth. I believe my research complements well the research interests of the department.

Beyond my research, I have served as a teaching assistant for undergraduate courses in labor economics for three years. My commitment as an educator has been rewarded by excellent teaching evaluations. I would welcome the opportunity to contribute to [Institute Name]'s teaching program and mentor students in areas related to labor economics, firm dynamics, and public policy.

I have attached my Curriculum Vitae, Job Market Paper, Research Statement, and Teaching Statement for your review. I would be honored to further discuss my potential contributions to your department and look forward to hearing from you.

Thank you for your consideration.

Your Sincerely,

Jisu Jeun
